THE South-Carolina Gazette.

From MONDAY April 17th, to MONDAY April 24th, 1749.

The Humble ADDRESS of the House of Commons to the King.

Most Gracious Sovereign,

WE, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Commons of Great-Britain in parliament assembled, beg leave to return your Majesty our unfeigned thanks for your most gracious speech from the throne; and to congratulate your Majesty on your safe and happy return to these kingdoms.

We acknowledge, with the utmost gratitude, your Majesty's constant attention to the good of your people; and beg leave to congratulate your Majesty on the success of your endeavours for restoring peace to Europe, by the happy conclusion of a definitive treaty, in which all your allies have concurred without reserve; and we cannot, on this occasion, but admire your Majesty's wisdom & conduct, by which you have, in so short a space of time, reconciled and adjusted so many jarring interests, and completed this great and necessary work.

Permit us, Sir, humbly to return your Majesty our thanks for your tender Regard to your faithful subjects, in taking the first opportunity to reduce the publick expences, which has been done with unusual dispatch; and we acknowledge equally your Majesty's wisdom in recommending to us œconomy, and the improvement of the revenue, both absolutely necessary in our present circumstances, in order to lessen the national debt, ease your people, and strengthen ourselves against all future events; and we assure your Majesty, that we will omit nothing which may conduce to those important and salutary ends.

It gives the highest satisfaction to your faithful Commons, that your Majesty has been graciously pleased to take notice of the bravery of your forces by sea and land, an honour their behaviour has most justly deserved; and we do assure your Majesty, that all due attention shall be paid, on our part, to the services of those gallant men, who have signalized themselves so gloriously in defence of their country.

We are truly sensible of the importance of that signal success which has attended your Majesty's arms at sea, through the course of the war, and are fully convinced how necessary it is to maintain our fleets in perfect strength and order, even in times of the most profound peace. Your faithful Commons beg leave humbly to assure your Majesty, that they will grant such supplies as are necessary to secure effectually the peace and tranquillity of your Majesty's government, and to preserve the honour of the nation, by making good its engagements; and that the chief objects of our consideration shall be what your Majesty has so graciously and wisely recommended to us, the improvement of our commerce, the supporting and strengthening of public credit, and the cultivation of the arts of peace; that your Majesty may be enabled to gratify your royal inclinations, by making this nation a flourishing and happy people, under your auspicious government, and that of your royal family, to future generations.

His Majesty's most Gracious ANSWER.

GENTLEMEN.

I Thank you most heartily for this very affectionate Address. You may rely upon my ready concurrence with you in the execution of all such measures, as will relieve my people, as soon as possible, from the burthens which the exigences of war, have laid upon them, and procure to them the blessing of a safe and lasting peace.

From the Gentleman's Magazine for December, 1748.

FOREIGN HISTORY.

RUSSIA.

The Empress has notify'd to the foreign ministers her intended journey to Moscow where she designs to reside a whole year, unless recalled by the alteration of affairs.—Count Lestock, a privy counsellor, and physician to her majesty, has been arrested, his papers seiz'd, and examin'd before the empress; his crime is yet a secret, but he has been always consider'd as an enemy to the H. of Austria.

SWEDEN.

His Swedish Majesty is recover'd; but whether it be on his expected demise, or an approaching election in Courland (to which Mr. Saxe has resign'd his pretensions in favour of the King of Prussia's brother,) some preparations are making against a rupture, which is remotely hinted as a thing expected at Petersburgh; in such case, Count Lowendahl, it is already said, will command the troops of this country.

DENMARK.

The King of Denmark, being sensible as well as his majesty of Prussia, that the strength of a nation consists in the multitude of people, has determin'd to naturalize all foreigners of what quality or profession whatsoever, who shall give in their names, and take the oath of allegiance, and grant them 20 years exemption from all personal charges, from the imposts for quartering of troops, and all other taxes, excepting the excise and the duties on their merchandizes. Those who set up manufactories shall be gratify'd with particular privileges. The masters of trades shall be admitted, without delay or expence, into the companies, on making oath that they have formerly carry'd on such business; those, who bring capitals may place their money in the East-India, Island or other companies. The Reformed, or Calvinist religion being already tolerated at Copenhagen, foreigners shall have the same liberty there, and those of the Romish communion in that and other priviledg'd places. All foreigners who intend to take these benefits may apply to his majesty's residents in the several courts of Europe.

PRUSSIA.

The king has resolved to establish 5 trading companies; one for the Baltic; another for the ocean; and the third to China and the East-Indies. For better regulating these establishments, and keeping a constant marine, a college of admiralty is to be constituted in each place where is a company.

A Description of the Public Fireworks, to be exhibited on Occasion of the General Peace, concluded at Aix-la-Chapelle, October 7, 1748, taken from an authentic Print beautifully engraved in the London Magazine for December last.

THE length of the whole will be 410 feet; of the grand building in the middle 144 feet; the height from the foundation to the top, where is placed the king's arms, will be 100 feet, and from thence to a fun (32 feet in diameter, which will burn several hours) placed between two others a little lower, will be 50 feet more, so that upon the whole, it will be 150 feet high.

At each end is a pavillion serving for storehouses to the enginiers.

On the arcades, which run from the pavillions to the center, will be planted cannon, which are to be fired at the beginning and end of the fireworks.

There are handsome steps, which go up to a grand area before the middle arch, where a band of 100 musicians are to play before the fireworks begin, the music for which is to be composed by mr. handel.

Just over them is placed the duke of Montague's arms, as master of the ordnance.

Above that is the statue of peace, on a pedestal, with her foot upon a cannon ball, attended by mars and neptune.

Towards the top is a grand basso relievo, to be illuminated, in which which the king is represented giving Peace to Britannia; the attendants of peace are the arts and the muses; the attendants of Britannia are liberty, commerce, industry, &c.

On each side, a little lower, are two smaller basso-relievos, the one representing mars in his chariot drawn by two lions, the other neptune drawn by sea horses.

The whole building is to be adorn'd with rich carvings, paintings, medals, and several statues, among which are those for Cardinal virtues, viz. justice, prudence, temperance and fortitude.

At the top of the building, from behind the two stars, which are on each side the larger basso relievo, 1000 rockets will go off: The whole front of the building will display fire-wheels, and many other devices in various forms and colours, which will continue for three hours; at the conclusion of which, from behind the king's arms at top, six thousand rockets will go off at once. After which the whole building will be illuminated, & continue so 5 hours more.
